Sentiment In House 100 Percent For Change, Clerk Declares

OKEH BY SENATE LIKELY

Position Of Governor On Proposal Remains Question Mark

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13—Ohio probably will be back on "slow time" within a month, legislative leaders predicted today in the wake of an unprecedented avalanche of bills introduced in the 95th general assembly which would place Ohio in the central time zone for the duration of the war.

Eighteen bills, sixteen in the house and two in the senate, were thrown in the legislative hoppers to place Ohio on statutory Central Standard Time. This would give Ohio central war time, in effect the same as the Eastern Standard time which governed the state's clocks before war time was inaugurated a year ago.

Veteran statehouse observers were agreed that this was the greatest number of bills introduced in one day on the subject in recent legislative history.

Change Favored
Otis Johnson, clerk of the house, declared that the sentiment in the house "is 100 percent for a time change." A senate leader who asked anonymity said that feeling was equally strong in the senate, although the upper house might go easier on the matter if Governor Bricker made opposition to the bill a personal matter.

"But unless the governor does make it a personal matter, the time change will become law within a month," he added.

Ohio is on the western edge of the Eastern Time belt, and with war time in effect is two hours ahead of the old "sun time" which governed Ohio clocks as late as the 1920's.

Position In Doubt
The governor's position in the matter remained a question mark. He refused comment on the avalanche of bills in the legislative hoppers. But two nights ago (Continued on Page Two)

• "Our Boys Do Not Die In Vain," Says Mother Of Five Missing Sons

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—"Our boys do not die in vain," said a mother burdened today with grief because her five sons are missing in action and may have gone down with their ship, the cruiser Juneau which was sunk in the Solomons area last November.

She is Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Waterloo, Iowa, who gave this message to all mothers who have sons in the armed services:

"Our boys do not die in vain. They live, they fight, and sometimes they die that someday this whole world will be free. Someday peace will again come to all countries and men and women and children will be free to live with the dignity that is the basis of all human existence. When that day comes we will realize that our sons will live forever in glorious memories."

Two lieutenant commanders were sent from Des Moines to inform the 49-year-old wife of an Illinois Central freight conductor that her sons, George T., 29, Francis H., 26, Joseph E., 23, Madison A., 22, and Albert L., 20, are missing.

"George and Frank (Francis)," their mother said, "were in the Navy for four years. Then at Pearl Harbor a friend, Bill Ball, was killed and the other three joined up. They asked to be placed on one ship with their two brothers. Their request was granted."

(Granting of such a request is unusual since Navy regulations generally prevent the "massing" of one family on a ship—to avoid such tragedies as the Sullivan case.)

Albert was the only married one and his wife and 2-year-old son, Jimmy, live with the Sullivans in Waterloo. Also at home is a daughter, Genevieve, the Sullivans' only other child.

"You and I haven't given up hope, of course," Mrs. Sullivan said. "But maybe our hopes will not be realized. The boys may be gone forever."

"We heard from them last Thanksgiving. The letters were written on November 8th—just little notes. Full of affection and humor. Only Joe said that 'we will get those Japs'."

"They were good, average American boys. The three who joined up last used to be in the Rath Packing Co. here and all of them were popular with the local boys and girls. They all had gone to high school and they played basketball there and on the church team."

"They were always 'the Sullivan boys,' to the town. 'Like most of the other young men here they liked best to hunt and to fish—just like their dad always did.'"

Waterloo with its 50,000 residents is the center of an agricultural community but also has some war industries.

"Those industries prompt me to say this," said Mrs. Sullivan. "Here on the home front is where the war will be won, almost as much as on the fighting fronts. It is up to us to work hard to make the tools for our boys to fight with."

"And it is up to us to buy more and more War Bonds to pay for those tools."

Early in February, at the invitation of the Navy, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan are going to Portland, Ore., to christen a new tug.

"We hope," she said, "that it, too, will help win the war—as win the war we shall."

• BREAKFAST IN BED OR BEATING BRINGS DIVORCE

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—Mrs. Lillian Frances Orr, 24, held a divorce decree today after testifying that her husband, Hugh, is a Communist, works as a sailor "on and off when he wants to," and beats her when she fails to give him breakfast in bed.

Superior Court Judge Oscar F. Nelson awarded her $60 a month for the support of their 10-month-old daughter, Ann Marie, over her protest that:

"Oh, he would never give me that."

Judge Nelson replied: "Anyone who can enjoy the luxury of breakfast tea in bed ought to be able to pay $2 a day for his baby's support."

LABOR BOARD "STERN"

Wildcat Walkout Termed As "Threat To Safety" Of The Nation

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 13—Hopes for an early end to the unauthorized strikes which have hampered production in the heart of the nation's anthracite fields were dampened today as 2700 miners voted to remain away from work in defiance of a return-to-work ultimatum from the War Labor Board.

Approximately 16,000 additional strikers also were voting today, with the issue still in doubt, on whether to end their wildcat walkouts or await pre-emptory federal action.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 13—Striking coal miners in the northeastern hard coal region, cast their individual votes today on whether to return to work immediately or await pre-emptory action by the federal government.

Leaders of 14 Local United Mine Workers of America union ordered the 21,000 "wildcat" striking miners to cast their ballots today and report their decision tonight.

The vote was ordered in the face of a War Labor Board order to the strikers to go back to work. Terming the hard coal strike "a threat to the safety of our nation," the Labor Board warned it "will exercise all powers within its jurisdiction to fulfill its obligations to the country."

Out Two Weeks
The strikers, who walked out 14 days ago in protest over a fifty cents a month increase in union dues, will record their votes at their local union headquarters. One hundred union leaders meeting in Wilkes Barre, ordered the membership poll to determine the temper of the striking miners and expressed hope that the vote would clear the road for an immediate resumption of work.

Many of the union leaders, however, believed that summary action by the War Labor Board would prove the best solution to a strike that has threatened the depleted coal piles of the eastern seaboard.

Michael Kosik, president of UMW District 1, disclosed the government ultimatum at last night's meeting of union leaders and cheering broke out in the hall. "That's what we want," one delegate shouted. "Let the government (Continued on Page Two)"

• JUNGLE TREE CLIMBING LEADS TO D. S. C. AWARD

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 13 — Climbing a tree is not ordinarily considered a feat of courage and distinction but Col. Horace Harding of Pittsfield, Mass., was awarded a Distinguished Service Cross for climbing a tree in a New Guinea jungle.

The unusual factors were that Japanese bullets were flying thick about the tree which was being used as an observation post in the Buna district last December 24. Enemy snipers had wounded the observation officer and Col. Harding climbed up to have a look instead of assigning one of his men to the perilous job.

Col. Harding, of the field artillery, after descending safely from the tree, was told that communications with a forward outpost had failed. Again he took the job himself, exposing himself to enemy fire while making his way to the advance position to restore the field telephone line.

• PAY-AS-GO TAX GAINING FAVOR

Present Victory Levy May Be Doubled And Savings Forced On Workers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—Congressional sentiment for a pay-as-you-go tax plan increased today as some members said that the five percent Victory tax may have to be doubled, a 10 percent levy enacted and some form of forced savings imposed to meet President Roosevelt's request for $16,000,000,000 in new taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee is preparing to open hearings on tax legislation in a week or 10 days and according to its chairman, Rep. Doughton (D) N. C., the Ruml proposal for placing taxes on a current basis will be the first problem taken up.

Proponents of the pay-as-you-go income tax proposal hope to complete congressional action on such a plan before the 1942 taxes fall due on March 15. Under the Ruml plan, 1942 taxes would be skipped. A drive for enactment of a pay-as-you-go tax plan was opened in the house by Rep. Carlson (R) Kans., a member of the House Ways and Means Committee. He said that 27,200,000 citizens now are in debt to the federal government for taxes on their 1942 income, an increase of 23,300,000 since 1940 and declared that the country cannot afford to continue its present "shaky system" of collection.

Meanwhile congressional leaders held gloomy prospects of getting the President's requested new taxes by direct means.

Chairman George (D) Ga., of the Senate Finance Committee, said the only way to raise much more by direct taxes is through a sales tax, but he pointed out that the administration has never favored such a plan.

"Any material increase must come by the way of savings," he added.

George suggested raising the Victory tax to 10 per cent as a tentative measure, but insisted that the refundable five per cent must be refundable after the war as a non-interest bearing, non-negotiable bond.

"Okay," barked the top-kick, "let's see how fast you can pitch this tent!"

• Furious Action Over Five Months Preceded Destruction of Hornet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — Another great episode in the history of America's fighting men and ships was added today through the Navy department's saga of the aircraft carrier Hornet whose flyers blasted Jap warships and knocked enemy planes from the skies during five months of furious action before she was sunk in the South Pacific last October.

The Navy disclosed that the Hornet was among the American warships which defeated the Japanese armada that attacked Midway island in June and that her planes carried out heavy attacks on enemy installations in the Northern Solomon islands before the 20,000-ton vessel went down in the battle of Santa Cruz October 26.

Japanese bombers ferociously attacked the Hornet for 10 hours and severely damaged the carrier, but were unable to sink her. The Hornet finally was sent to the bottom by American shells and torpedoes to preclude any possibility of her falling into enemy hands.

All but 129 of the Hornet's complement of 2,900 officers and men were rescued before the carrier slid beneath the waves. The navy credited the bombing, torpedo plane, fighting and scouting squadrons of the Hornet with the following minimum results in the Midway and Santa Cruz battles:

Seven 1,000 pound bomb hits on a Japanese aircraft carrier, larger than any U. S. ships and which was last seen blazing from stem to stern and wallowing crosswise to the wind.

Flash—Ed Flynn nominated for ambassador to the South Pacific!

Flash—where do you hang your hat in an ocean?

Flash—So what?

If confirmed Mr. Flynn will be the first diplomat to do business in a boat.

We have heard of books and sermons in stones but this is the first time in 10 years a Democratic National Chairman has been found at sea.

If appointed Flynn's cable address will be "Neptune" and he will get his mail by floating barrel.

When he has the South Pacific straightened out he will move on to the English channel which has been without an ambassador since Gertrude Ederle quit.

• WILLKIE SPEAKS PIECE ON ABUSE OF CENSORSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—There must be no abuses of censorship in wartime America, Wendell L. Willkie insisted today but at the same time the 1940 Republican presidential candidate appealed to the government, "not to censor us too much."

"Let us be free, while we fight for freedom," Willkie told a meeting of authors and publishers. Willkie said that America today was like an ancient city whose inhabitants were walled in from the outside world.

"We get official reports," he said, "but we never quite know. I've been beyond this wall and I know that nothing on the other side is the same as you think it is from your side."

Willkie deplored the apathy of some persons toward censorship. "People say leave it to the experts and the news will percolate through as it should. But that's a fine doctrine only until you know some of the experts."

"Here we've been able to read, think and say what we think is right and wrong," Willkie continued. "And I'm greatly concerned that those rights and others shall remain untouched. I am not protesting. I merely want to stir people against any growing tendency toward greater censorship."

"Open the books. Let 'em read 'em. Keep censorship to the minimum. Say what you think no matter what some government official thinks is best for the people."

LONDON, Jan. 13—Despite war losses, the British navy today is far stronger than before 1939, in aircraft carriers as well as other classifications. First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander said in a luncheon speech today.

"Although we have had heavy losses in aircraft carriers," he said, "we have now more carriers than at the beginning of the war after replacing our losses. . . ."

LONDON, Jan. 13 — Twenty grounded Nazi aircraft were destroyed in a raid by American flying fortresses on the base of Castel Benito, 10 miles south of Tripoli. Exchange Telegraph reported from North African headquarters today.

A score of Messerschmitt fighters attempted to intercept the raid and a 75-mile running fight resulted in which 14 of them were destroyed without an American loss, the dispatch said.

Four fires were started in airport installations by fortress bombs.

By International News Service
Once proud German armies were reported "retreating in panic" on some sectors of the Caucasian front today and abandoning huge stores of equipment and supplies to the pursuing Red army.

"Thousands and thousands" of bodies of slain German soldiers litter the streets of towns captured in the Russian advance through the north Caucasus, frontline dispatches reported as Red army columns drove closer to Rostov, the main objective of the Don-Caucasus offensive.

As it became more likely that Hitler's armies will be swept from the rich Caucasus and the fertile valley of the Don, Berlin's propaganda machine increased its efforts to prepare its people for the disaster.

Stockholm reports quoted Berlin dispatches as declaring that the Russians had brought "a thousand tanks" from factories east of the Volga and thrown them into the Caucasus battle.

"From 60 to 80 tanks move in ahead of the enemy in every attack on our positions," the German announcement declared.

Retreat Harassed
Soviet dispatches reported that Stormovik divebombers had gone into action to harass the enemy retreat, and the noon communiqué told of a bombing raid on the German airfield at Krasnodar in the western Caucasus. Ten grounded planes were destroyed and 30 damaged in the sweep ahead of the advancing Russian columns that converged on Rostov from several directions.

The Germans counter-attacked furiously on several sectors of the far-flung front from the deep Caucasus to the Veliki Luki area near the Latvian border, but the few gains made were promptly cancelled by Russian rallies.

Axis Subs Driven Off East Coast

Long Sweep By Warships Fails To Provide Single Brush With Enemy

WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET, AT SEA, Jan. 8—(Delayed)—Evidence that axis submarines have been driven from ocean shipping lanes off the east coast and out of the Caribbean area came today with completion of a long sweep by United States warships.

Units of the Atlantic fleet, constantly alert to ensnare U-boats, finished the mission without a single brush with the enemy. Everything indicated that the axis undersea raiders simply were not anywhere near.

The roving search by the fleet ships moved along off the eastern seaboard, extended across main-line shipping paths out at sea, and as far south as American bases in the West Indies.

Fact that no enemy subs were contacted was regarded as ample proof that the U-boats have withdrawn from these regions, at least temporarily. The commander of the fleet force described the trip as "the most quiet war-time cruise" he ever has made. It was the most uneventful that this correspondent yet has experienced.

Ships engaged in the mission were underway on Christmas day and New Years.

Chairman George (D) Ga., of the Senate Finance Committee, said the only way to raise much more by direct taxes is through a sales tax, but he pointed out that the administration has never favored such a plan.

"Any material increase must come by the way of savings," he added.

George suggested raising the Victory tax to 10 per cent as a tentative measure, but insisted that the additional five per cent must be refundable after the war as a non-interest bearing, non-negotiable bond.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13—"My Day At Camp" by Red Ruffing, former New York Yankee pitcher now in the army, went something like this, he revealed.

"I understand you are a good pitcher, Ruffing," the top sergeant said.

"Well, I'm a pitcher," the Yankee twirler replied.

"Okay," barked the top-kick, "let's see how fast you can pitch this tent!"

Furious Action Over Five Months Preceded Destruction of Hornet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—Another great episode in the history of America's fighting men and ships was added today through the Navy department's saga of the aircraft carrier Hornet whose flyers blasted Jap warships and knocked enemy planes from the skies during five months of furious action before she was sunk in the South Pacific last October.

The Navy disclosed that the Hornet was among the American warships which defeated the Japanese armada that attacked Midway island in June and that her planes carried out heavy attacks on enemy installations in the Northern Solomon islands before the 20,000 ton vessel went down in the battle of Santa Cruz October 26.

Japanese bombers ferociously attacked the Hornet for 10 hours and severely damaged the carrier, but were unable to sink her. The Hornet finally was sent to the bottom by American shells and torpedoes to preclude any possibility of her falling into enemy hands.

All but 129 of the Hornet's complement of 2,900 officers and men were rescued before the carrier slid beneath the waves.

The navy credited the bombing, torpedo plane, fighting and scouting squadrons of the Hornet with the following minimum results in the Midway and Santa Cruz battles:

Seven 1,000 pound bomb hits on a Japanese aircraft carrier, larger than any U. S. ships and which was last seen blazing from stem to stern and wallowing crosswise to the wind.

Flash—Ed Flynn nominated for ambassador to the South Pacific!

Flash—where do you hang your hat in an ocean?

Flash—So what?

If confirmed Mr. Flynn will be the first diplomat to do business in a boat.

We have heard of books and sermons in stones but this is the first time in 10 years a Democratic National Chairman has been found at sea.

When he has the South Pacific straightened out he will move on to the English channel which has been without an ambassador since Gertrude Ederle quit.

WILLKIE SPEAKS PIECE ON ABUSE OF CENSORSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—There must be no abuses of censorship in wartime America, Wendell L. Willkie insisted today but at the same time the 1940 Republican presidential candidate appealed to the government, "not to censor us too much."

"Let us be free, while we fight for freedom," Willkie told a meeting of authors and publishers.

Willkie said that America today was like an ancient city whose inhabitants were walled in from the outside world.

"We get official reports," he said, "but we never quite know. I've been beyond this wall and I know that nothing on the other side is the same as you think it is from your side."

Willkie deplored the apathy of some persons toward censorship.

"People say leave it to the experts and the news will percolate through as it should. But that's a fine doctrine only until you know some of the experts."

"Here we've been able to read, think and say what we think is right and wrong," Willkie continued. "And I'm greatly concerned that those rights and others shall remain untouched. I am not protesting. I merely want to stir people against any growing tendency toward greater censorship."

"Open the books. Let 'em read 'em. Keep censorship to the minimum. Say what you think no matter what some government official thinks is best for the people."

CINCINNATI REDS WILL TRAIN ON INDIANA CAMPUS

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 13—The Cincinnati Reds will train on the Indiana university campus at Bloomington, Ind., this Spring if the university's trustees will approve, Redleg General Manager Warren C. Giles announced today.

After inspecting the university's available facilities, Giles asserted he was "sold" on the university site. Giles said a decision by the university's board of trustees was likely within three or four days.

Far behind the lines the Stalin-grad garrison continued to rout the entrenched enemy from pill-boxes and dugouts and the ruins of shattered buildings. On one sector the Red forces drove the enemy from the western suburbs (Continued on Page Two)

LONDON, Jan. 13—Despite war losses, the British navy today is far stronger than before 1939, in aircraft carriers as well as other classifications, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander said in a luncheon speech today.

"Although we have had heavy losses in aircraft carriers," he said, "we have now more carriers than at the beginning of the war after replacing our losses."

"Our naval losses in themselves would constitute a great fleet. Yet we have replaced the lost ships and today have far larger naval strength than in 1939."

LONDON, Jan. 13—Twenty grounded Nazi aircraft were destroyed in a raid by American flying fortresses on the base of Castel Benito, 10 miles south of Tripoli, Exchange Telegraph reported from North African headquarters today.

A score of Messerschmitt fighters attempted to intercept the raid and a 75-mile running fight resulted in which 14 of them were destroyed without an American loss, the dispatch said.

Four fires were started in airport installations by fortress bombs.

Once proud German armies were reported "retreating in panic" on some sectors of the Caucasian front today and abandoning huge stores of equipment and supplies to the pursuing Red army.

"Thousands and thousands" of bodies of slain German soldiers litter the streets of towns captured in the Russian advance through the north Caucasus, frontline dispatches reported as Red army columns drove closer to Rostov, the main objective of the Don-Caucasus offensive.

As it became more likely that Hitler's armies will be swept from the rich Caucasus and the fertile valley of the Don, Berlin's propaganda machine increased its efforts to prepare its people for the disaster.

Stockholm reports quoted Berlin dispatches as declaring that the Russians had brought "a thousand tanks" from factories east of the Volga and thrown them into the Caucasus battle.

"From 60 to 80 tanks move in ahead of the enemy in every attack on our positions," the German announcement declared.

Retreat Harassed
Soviet dispatches reported that Stormovik divebombers had gone into action to harass the enemy retreat, and the noon communiqué told of a bombing raid on the German airfield at Krasnodar in the western Caucasus. Ten grounded planes were destroyed and 30 damaged in the sweep ahead of the advancing Russian columns that converged on Rostov from several directions.

The Germans counter-attacked furiously on several sectors of the far-flung front from the deep Caucasus to the Velikie Luki area near the Latvian border, but the few gains made were promptly cancelled by Russian rallies.

ILLINOIS UNIT OF PIPE LINE NOW COMPLETE

Illinois branch of the world's largest oil pipe line has been completed by the Sheehan Pipe Line Construction Co., with the welding of the last joint of pipe in Union county at Norris City, Ill.

Completion of the entire line from Longview, Texas, to Norris City awaits linking of the Illinois line with the western line at Cape Girardeau, Mo., where the vitally important tube crosses the Mississippi river.

Construction east from Norris City to Waterloo on the Pickaway-Fayette county line was started Sunday.

Workmen employed by Bechtel and Dempsey are hard at work in western Pickaway county moving their line eastward.

The pipe line will go into Philadelphia, Pa., and Bayonne, N. J., federal officials hoping that it will be in operation by early June to help alleviate an oil shortage on the east coast.

BUY WAR BONDS

"Our daughter has a hope chest...in an envelope"

"When our little girl's great day comes—and it may not be more than 10 years off—she's going to have all the things a girl dreams about.

"Bright-colored luncheon sets and fine Irish linen... satin-smooth percale sheets and soft fluffy bath towels... and lovely laced-edged lingerie...

"A setting-out like that will cost at least $400! "We'll only pay $300. Because, you see, we're buying War Bonds for her. And for every $3 worth we buy we get $4 back in 10 years. "So every single month we buy a $25 War Bond which costs us only $18.75.

Buying freedom

"And there's something else you can't help but think about when you buy War Bonds. We're doing more than saving money and making a good investment for the future. We're buying the guns and planes and tanks to defend our home. If we don't help our country now to defend our little girl's future, she won't have any future. Except a short and terrible life of slavery to a Jap or Nazi master."

This little girl's father is putting every spare cent of cash into War Bonds, through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan. So are the great majority of Americans.

But there are still some Americans who ought to be buying War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan... and aren't. Others are in, but haven't hit their 10 percent yet. Some could stretch it to 12 percent or 15 percent, just as thousands of other hard-working people are doing.

Everybody—every pay day—10 percent or more
Uncle Sam hopes that every person on a pay roll will be in the Pay-Roll Savings Plan by New Year's. And that we'll top the 10 percent goal. Yes, top it... because we know now it's going to take more than 10 percent to win!

Your comforts and your fun must wait. Your Bonds will buy them all some day... more of them than you can ever buy now.

If you are in, be sure you're putting not 6 percent or 7 percent or 8 percent, but at least 10 percent into War Bonds every pay day! If you aren't in the Pay-Roll Savings Plan... sign up tomorrow!

- WHAT YOU SHOULD DO
- If you are... 1. Already setting aside 10 percent of your pay for War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan—boost that 10 percent if you can.
 2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed, but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
 3. Working in a plant where the Pay-Roll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager, and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
 4. Unable to get in on the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for any reason, go to see your local bank, or other issuing agent. They will be glad to help you start a plan of your own!

ILLINOIS UNIT OF PIPE LINE NOW COMPLETE

Illinois branch of the world's largest oil pipe line has been completed by the Sheehan Pipe Line
Construction Co., with the welding of the last joint of pipe in Union county at Norris City, Ill.

Completion of the entire line from Longview, Texas, to Norris
City awaits linking of the Illinois line with the western line at Cape Girardeau, Mo., where the vitally important tube crosses the Mississippi river.

Construction east from Norris
City to Waterloo on the Pickaway-
Fayette county line was started Sunday.

Workmen employed by Bechtel and Dempsey are hard at work in western Pickaway county moving their line eastward.

The pipe line will go into Philadelphia, Pa., and Bayonne, N. J., federal officials hoping that it will be in operation by early June to help alleviate an oil shortage on the east coast.

BUY WAR BONDS

"Our daughter has a hope chest ...in an envelope"

"When our little girl's great day comes—and it may not be more than 10 years off—she's going to have all the things a girl dreams about.

"Bright-flowered luncheon sets and fine Irish linen... satin-smooth percale sheets and soft fluffy bath towels... and lovely lace-edged lingerie...

"A setting-out like that will cost at least $400!
"We'll only pay $300. Because, you see, we're buying War Bonds for her. And for every $3 worth we buy we get $4 back in 10 years.
"So every single month we buy a $25 War
Bond which costs us only $18.75.

Buying freedom

"And there's something else you can't help but think about when you buy War Bonds. We're doing more than saving money and making a good investment for the future. We're buying the guns and planes and tanks to defend our home. If we don't help our country now to defend our little girl's future," she won't have any future. Except a short and terrible life of slavery to a Jap or Nazi master."

This little girl's father is putting every spare cent of cash into War Bonds, through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan. So are the great majority of Americans.

But there are still some Americans who ought to be buying War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan... and aren't.

Others are in, but haven't hit their 10 percent
yet. Some could stretch it to 12 percent or 15 percent, just as thousands of other hard-working people are doing.

Everybody—every pay day—10 percent or more
Uncle Sam hopes that every person on a pay roll will be in the Pay-Roll Savings Plan by New Year's. And that we'll top the 10 percent goal. Yes, top it... because we know now it's going to take more than 10 percent to win!

Your comforts and your fun must wait. Your Bonds will buy them all some day... more of them than you can ever buy now.

If you are in, be sure you're putting not 6 percent or 7 percent or 8 percent, but at least 10 percent into War Bonds every pay day!
If you aren't in the Pay-Roll Savings Plan...
sign up tomorrow!

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO

- If you are...
1. Already setting aside 10 percent of your pay for War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan—boost that 10 percent if you can.
- Working in a plant where the Plan is installed, but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
- Working in a plant where the Pay-Roll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager, and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
- Unable to get in on the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for any reason, go to see your local bank, or other issuing agent. They will be glad to help you start a plan of your own.

INVADING AMERICA

HOW Germany hopes to conquer the United States has recently been explained by a study of the works of Count Schlieffen. He was chief of the German general staff before the first World War, and worked out the plan by which it was hoped to conquer France in 1914. The plan was modified, and failed. In 1940 it was again resorted to, this time without change, and succeeded. Schlieffen's ability makes his views about an American war entitled to great respect.

"Invasion of America by a surprise attack is impossible," says Schlieffen's plan on file with the German general staff, "because of the time required for transporting troops. Nevertheless American resistance can be broken by inflicting enormous material damage upon the entire country.

"We must make a series of landing operations, with naval protection, which should take with great speed several important cities, damaging them by severing all communications, destroying all important plants, seizing the entire war and transport material, and imposing heavy contributions.

"Small landing detachments will be sufficient, and it will be hard for American defense forces to stop us. The actual arrival of American troops, after they have lost time fighting off fake landings, will still be too late to keep us from counter-attacking, re-embarking and landing elsewhere.

"By destructive operations along the coast and by blocking the economic arteries of the entire country, conditions can be made so unbearable that the government will be ready to conclude an acceptable peace."

The resistance of England and Russia has saved the United States from such attempts so far. But the desperation that comes from receding victory may yet cause Germany to try something of the sort. That is why communities should keep up their defense preparations.

GREEK WISDOM

THE Greeks had a word for it, or rather a phrase. "Nothing in excess" was the key to their ancient way of life. It is sound advice, whose wisdom is brought to mind by a remark of Ambassador Joseph C. Grew's concerning the Japanese.

All we asked of Japan, according to Mr. Grew, was that she "abandon her militarist aggression, cease being a bad neighbor in Eastern Asia, and enjoy with us the prosperity that we and the Japanese could have found in common."

Instead they preferred to grab at everything in Eastern Asia and elsewhere, and begrudge any other country a share of the wealth in the Eastern Asiatic area. In

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON. — Speaking of possibilities for a 1944 presidential nomination, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana is one of them. I don't mean to say that he could be presidentially named at a Democratic or Republican convention, but there's increasing talk of a third party organization, and Burton could head such a lineup's ticket very suitably. His official label has been and still is Democratic and he says he wants it to remain so, provided the Democrats stay democratic, but, according to the senator, they show symptoms that he expresses himself extremely suspicious of. And the Republicans, he adds, show the same symptoms.

The symptoms the Montana lawmaker refers to, he describes as those of a lapse into chronic "internationalism."

He raises no objection to a temporary attack of it, for war purposes. Indeed, he's for the most vigorous and united prosecution of the Allied powers' activities against the Axis. He's super-energetically opposed, though, to anything even remotely in the nature of a post-war, peacetime federation of countries, such as advance planners here and in Britain have suggested. Or, if this sort of a federation actually does develop, Senator Wheeler's vote is violently to have the U. S. A. boycotted.

It's a scheme that's been a good bit canvassed of late. It hasn't been definitely doped out yet, but its general terms are pretty obvious.

The theory is that the genuine democracies (our own, the rest of the Americas, the Britons, the Chinese, the Fighting French and maybe the Mussolini-freed Italians) are to cohere, not quite as closely as our United States do, but substantially resembling us. Russia'll be a puzzle, but it can wait until the time comes. And we're to take charge of the German and Jap education systems and run 'em until they're civilized.

It's a program that's been vaguely discussed for quite awhile, but with no particularly reliable sponsor.

The other day, however, Vice President Henry A. Wallace sketched it middling specifically, in a broadcast in every direction. That was what stirred up Senator Wheeler. He earlier propagandists, but he considered Henry Wallace entitled to a return jab, and he delivered one.

Among other things, the senator's surmise was that President

FRANCO'S OBJECTION

WASHINGTON — Some of the most significant political maneuvering ever seen by seasoned diplomats is going on backstage regarding the filming of Ernest Hemingway's famous book "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Strenuous objections have been voiced to Paramount by the French Fascist Government through its Ambassador Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas, and it now seems probable that the film will never reach the American public.

The book is the story of the civil war in Spain, the struggle between the Loyalist Government and the Fascist revolutionaries supported by Hitler and Mussolini, which many people believe was the prelude to the current war. However, Sam Wood, the producer for Paramount, has left out all politics.

"Gone With the Wind" was a hot love story," says Wood who worked on the film, "and 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' is an even hotter love story."

But even though the Paramount version emphasizes love and leaves out politics, Gen. Franco doesn't like it. Paramount has already invested more than $2,000,000 in it. Gary Cooper is playing the star role. But Gen. Franco says NO.

Inside reason why he says NO is briefly this: Showing of the film will promote the sale of Hemingway's book. And though the film shuns politics, the book decidedly doesn't. So Franco envisages sale of the book all over the world.

Nobody ever dreamed that Franco's hand was that strong inside the USA. But the State Department is for him; also the Rockefeller Committee is not enthusiastic about the picture's release. But most important of all, the Vatican's disapproval is the real reason why "For Whom the Bell Tolls" will probably not be shown.

"SISTIE" LAUNCHES A SHIP

The optimistic note in the President's message to Congress has also been reflected in his manner recently. Before going on the floor of the House to deliver his message, the President spent several minutes chatting gaily with Congressional leaders and spinning a yarn for the especial benefit of Senate Republican Leader, Charles McNary of Oregon. Henry Kaiser is turning out Liberty ships at such a phenomenal rate in Oregon yards, the President told McNary, that his little granddaughter, "Sistie" Boettiger of Seattle, Wash., is comparing Kaiser to Superman.

It seems that "Sistie" ("She's getting to be a pretty big girl now," said the President) was invited by Kaiser to christen a ship at one of the Oregon yards. She was given a bottle of champagne and told to stand near the ways.

"But where's the ship?" Sistie asked, according to her grandfather.

"Just start swinging that bottle," Kaiser instructed her. "By the time you bring it down, a ship will be there."

DIET AND HEALTH

Painful Feet Caused By Ill-Fitting Shoes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERYONE'S foot has two sizes: one while sitting and another while standing. The size of the foot changes while walking, but the shoe does not. After you have tramped around all day, your feet are larger, but your shoes, unfortunately, are not. Shoes, therefore, have a great deal to do with foot comfort. A great many people suffer tortures with their feet because they have weak ankles. High shoes, which have almost gone out of style, are as good for these people as crutches.

The fitting of shoes is a responsibility which is enormously and widely neglected in this country. In every state in the Union a license is required for a blacksmith, but nobody who undertakes to fit a shoe to a human being has to have a license.

A great many shoe fitters do not study the buyer's foot carefully enough or make careful enough measurements and they too easily allow the buyer to select the shoe that he takes a fancy to without attempting to argue him into the one which would give him more comfort.

Functions of Foot

The functions of the foot are support and propulsion. The muscles and tendons arrange themselves to give support to the bones in whatever way the foot is doing. A high-heeled shoe makes the ankle less stable and more subject to strain and puts more of a strain on the muscles to keep the ankle joint in place. A high-heeled shoe therefore increases the amount of strain and muscle stress the foot has to uphold.

Every time you take a step the foot receives the shock of contact with the ground, supports the body and raises it forward, and itself is then brought forward, completing the cycle. Heel-and-toe walking jars the entire skeleton and the central nervous system.

A man with a throbbing headache walks on his toes to avoid this jar, but in the absence of headache the jar is there just the same; hence, the comfort of rubber heels. The tap, tap, tap of high heels is like a continuous hammering process. The physiological walker will have his toes hit the ground almost as soon as his heels.

Exercise and Rest

Neither prolonged exercise nor prolonged rest is good for the bones, muscles and tendons of your feet any more than for any other part of the body. The foot needs both exercise and rest to be healthful.

Flat foot is not simply a breakdown of one of the arches of the foot. It may be due to a large number of conditions, some of which I have implied or mentioned above. In other words, badly planned periods of exercise and rest, shoes which throw a strain on the ankles, walking which jars and strains the foot and its tendons and muscles, and a condition which I did not mention, which is strain caused by unphysiological position of the feet due to corns or bunions.

Most of these conditions can be corrected by properly fitted shoes or by shoes which have supports or wedges which are placed where they are needed, as the case may be. Vanity in women and carelessness in men is the cause of at least 50 per cent of the foot troubles of the world.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. Mrs. G. G.: What causes tic douloureux? Is there a reliable remedy for the relief of the pain? Is the removal of the nerve the only cure?

Answer: The cause of tic douloureux is unknown. It is a neuritis of the facial nerve. In the treatment many remedies have been suggested such as tincture of gelsemium, injection of the nerve with alcohol. Both of these are valuable. It is not always necessary to remove the nerve.

Embattled Love

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

CHOPPO'S AIM at the base of Jiro's skull was quick, but very sure. Jiro had taught the child well. The Japanese stopped leering and suddenly sprawled in an unconscious heap on top of Restwick Carnes.

"You wasn't doing so good, chum," observed Choppo.

While the red-haired man extricated himself from that loathsome hold, the little boy dived into Jiro's market basket. After Rusty's attack on it the contents were a jumbled mess. All the same, everything was there. Two cameras, instead of one, several rolls of film, even some pictures that could easily have been snapped the previous afternoon. Soldiers and sailors celebrating in the garden of a drinking place, grinning Japanese proprietors. Jiro must have hurried to develop them.

"Makin' fun!" fumed Choppo.

Rusty was propped on one elbow, fighting to get great gulps of fresh air into his starved lungs. The incensed youngster thrust the offensive snapshots beneath his friend's face. There was a story in them. The man knew. Proof that the Americans were weak and debauched. Pictured propaganda to add to the already supercharged conceit of the Japanese. Choppo did not exactly understand. Yet something in the pictures had spoken to him. "Makin' fun!" was undeniably descriptive.

Restwick Carnes' head was beginning to feel as if it were a part of his body, instead of some separate whirling object. "Choppo," he said in a hoarse voice, "go grab the first policeman or soldier you see and bring him here."

"You sure you can manage that rat?"

Rusty stretched for the iron pipe. "Yeh!"

The child, decided Rusty, must have traveled at a speed that made a blur of his spindly legs, because in no time he was back with a soldier whose gun had a bayonet so sharply capable that Restwick Carnes slid the iron pipe behind him.

"Good work," praised the soldier as he grasped the significance of the contents of Jiro's baskets. The red-haired man lifted a tired hand toward Choppo. "He did it."

Self-pride was beginning to wear on the little boy. He wriggled with embarrassment. Fortunately, at that moment, Jiro stirred and opened his eyes.

"Crawl back into the woodwork," yelled Choppo. A grin passed over Jiro's face, a grin not decipherable to the child. "Look at the dizzy dope!" the boy told the two men. "Grinning like that. He must be 'mysterical'."

Not evident to him was the fact that Jiro already had done his best work, that forthcoming punishment would be an honor. If they killed him he would be dying for his country. It would be next thing to taking a suicide dive. He grinned again when the soldier pointed his bayonet and ordered him to march ahead.

Back in the car neither Rusty nor Choppo spoke for a brief moment. Suddenly the little boy asked gruffly, "Well, what do we do now?"

"Maybe we'd better go back to the hotel."

"And leave all this trouble, all these fires and sick soldiers and Jiro guys hanging around? We gotta help—aw, Rusty, stop!" He turned away from the sight of tears sliding down the man's burnished cheeks.

Restwick Carnes was weeping from bodily fatigue and pain, from the devastation done his country. But too, he was weeping from a new poisonous knowledge that had crept into his unwilling mind. He was afraid. Beneath his bustling help, back of his splendid family name, he was afraid. Lily-livered! Paige had been right.

Luckily the boy did not dream of such trepidation in the heart of his idol. He did not dream that Rusty wanted to crawl away to some hiding place and pretend nothing had happened. Rusty's tears he compared to his own, that he was managing to hold back, that he MUST hold back, because of Rusty.

"Phooey! Everyone gets blubbery now and then." He slapped his bare knees. "Know what's in there? Butter. Sloppy melted butter."

Restwick Carnes grinned at the child. For his sake, he must get hold of himself. He must keep trying to help. He must do something important. "Choppo," he demanded, "will you wait for me right here?"

"What? Again? No!"

"For just a while?"

"You didn't win any prizes the last time I let you out alone. I'd better stick with you." His brow clenched. "What's buzzin', pal?"

"An idea—crazy, maybe, but I'm so darn mad at these Japs, it seems plausible."

"What does that mean?"

"Possible."

"I catch. 'Could do.' Let's have it." The childish crinkles between Choppo's eyes deepened as he listened. "Couldn't do," he decreed abruptly. "You ain't even got a gun on your plane."

"There are plenty of loose machine guns at Hickam. If I got one of those and a soldier to shoot it and got my ship warmed up—we might get a few Japs."

"And they might get you—yeh, and supposin' our own guys down there didn't know you when you was flyin' around? The guys shootin' the big anti-guns. That'd put you behind the eight ball, chum."

The youngster's brilliant reasoning held Rusty speechless for a while. Too, he was shamefully glad he had been talked out of it, and a bit shocked to realize that the danger of it had been evident to Choppo, but not to him. I must be a nitwit, he thought to himself.

Choppo's tired, hoarse voice directed, "Snap out of it, pal. Start this crate and let's get another victim. And if you're still in the notion of spilling any blood, spill it!"

INVADING AMERICA
HOW Germany hopes to conquer the United States has recently been explained by a study of the works of Count Schlieffen. He was chief of the German general staff before the first World War, and worked out the plan by which it was hoped to conquer France in 1914. The plan was modified, and failed. In 1940 it was again resorted to, this time without change, and succeeded. Schlieffen's ability makes his views about an American war entitled to great respect.
"Invasion of America by a surprise attack is impossible," says Schlieffen's plan on file with the German general staff, "because of the time required for transporting troops. Nevertheless American resistance can be broken by inflicting enormous material damage upon the entire country.
"We must make a series of landing operations, with naval protection, which should take with great speed several important cities, damaging them by severing all communications, destroying all important plants, seizing the entire war and transport material, and imposing heavy contributions.
"Small landing detachments will be sufficient, and it will be hard for American defense forces to stop us. The actual arrival of American troops, after they have lost time fighting off fake landings, will still be too late to keep us from counter-attacking, re-embarking and landing elsewhere.
"By destructive operations along the coast and by blocking the economic arteries of the entire country, conditions can be made so unbearable that the government will be ready to conclude an acceptable peace."
The resistance of England and Russia has saved the United States from such attempts so far. But the desperation that comes from receding victory may yet cause Germany to try something of the sort. That is why communities should keep up their defense preparations.

GREEK WISDOM
THE Greeks had a word for it, or rather a phrase. "Nothing in excess" was the key to their ancient way of life. It is sound advice, whose wisdom is brought to mind by a remark of Ambassador Joseph C. Grew concerning the Japanese.
All we asked of Japan, according to Mr. Grew, was that she "abandon her militarist aggression, cease being a bad neighbor in Eastern Asia, and enjoy with us the prosperity that we and the Japanese could have found in common."
Instead they preferred to grab at everything in Eastern Asia and elsewhere, and begrudge any other country a share of the wealth in the Eastern Asiatic area. In

WASHINGTON. — Speaking of possibilities for a 1944 presidential nomination, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana is one of 'em. FRANCO'S OBJECTION
WASHINGTON — Some of the most significant political maneuvering ever seen by seasoned diplomats is going on backstage regarding the filming of Ernest Hemingway's famous book "For Whom the Bell Tolls."
Strenuous objections have been voiced to Paramount by the French Fascist Government through its Ambassador Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas, and it now seems probable that the film will never reach the American public.
The book is the story of the civil war in Spain, the struggle between the Loyalist Government and the Fascist revolutionaries supported by Hitler and Mussolini, which many people believe was the prelude to the current war. However, Sam Wood, the producer for Paramount, has left out all politics.
"Gone With the Wind" was a hot love story," says Wood who worked on the film, "and 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' is an even hotter love story."
But even though the Paramount version emphasizes love and leaves out politics, Gen. Franco doesn't like it. Paramount has already invested more than $2,000,000 in it. Gary Cooper is playing the star role. But Gen. Franco says NO.
Inside reason why he says NO is briefly this: Showing of the film will promote the sale of Hemingway's book. And though the film shuns politics, the book decidedly doesn't. So Franco envisages sale of the book all over the world.
Nobody ever dreamed that Franco's hand was that strong inside the USA. But the State Department is for him; also the Rockefeller Committee is not enthusiastic about the picture's release. But most important of all, the Vatican's disapproval is the real reason why "For Whom the Bell Tolls" will probably not be shown.

"SISTIE" LAUNCHES A SHIP
The optimistic note in the President's message to Congress has also been reflected in his manner recently. Before going on the floor of the House to deliver his message, the President spent several minutes chatting gaily with Congressional leaders and spinning a yarn for the special benefit of Senate Republican Leader, Charles McNary of Oregon. Henry Kaiser is turning out Liberty ships at such a phenomenal rate in Oregon yards, the President told McNary, that his little granddaughter, "Sistie" Boettiger of Seattle, Wash., is comparing Kaiser to Superman.
It seems that "Sistie" ("She's getting to be a pretty big girl now," said the President) was invited by Kaiser to christen a ship at one of the Oregon yards. She was given a bottle of champagne and told to stand near the ways.
"But where's the ship?" Sistie asked, according to her grandfather.
"Just start swinging that bottle," Kaiser instructed her. "By the time you bring it down, a ship will be there."

HITLER'S STOOGES

their coming downfall and resultant poverty perhaps the Japanese will give some thought to the wisdom of the ancient Greeks.

Painful Feet Caused By Ill-Fitting Shoes
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EVERYONE'S foot has two sizes: one while sitting and another while standing. The size of the foot changes while walking, but the shoe does not. After you have tramped around all day, your feet are larger, but your shoes, unfortunately, are not. Shoes, therefore, have a great deal to do with foot comfort. A great many people suffer torments with their feet because they have weak ankles. High shoes, which have almost gone out of style, are as good for these people as crutches.
The fitting of shoes is a responsibility which is enormously and widely neglected in this country. In every state in the Union a license is required for a blacksmith, but nobody who undertakes to fit a shoe to a human being has to have a license.
A great many shoe fitters do not study the buyer's foot carefully enough or make careful enough measurements and they too easily allow the buyer to select the shoe that he takes a fancy to without attempting to argue him into the one which would give him more comfort.
Functions of Foot
The functions of the foot are support and propulsion. The muscles and tendons arrange themselves to give support to the bones in whatever work the foot is doing. A high-heeled shoe makes the ankle less stable and more subject to strain and puts more of a strain on the muscles to keep the ankle joint in place. A high-heeled shoe therefore increases the amount of strain and muscle stress the foot has to uphold.
Every time you take a step the foot receives the shock of contact with the ground, supports the body and raises it forward, and itself is then brought forward, completing the cycle. Heel-and-toe walking jars the entire skeleton and the central nervous system.
A man with a throbbing headache walks on his toes to avoid this jar, but in the absence of head-

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mrs. G. G.: What causes the douloureux? Is there a reliable remedy for the relief of the pain? Is the removal of the nerve the only cure?
Answer: The cause of the douloureux is unknown. It is a neuritis of the facial nerve. In the treatment many remedies have been suggested such as tincture of gold, injection of the nerve with alcohol. Both of these are valuable. It is not always necessary to remove the nerve.

Embattled Love

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE
CHOPPO'S AIM at the base of Jiro's skull was quick, but very sure. Jiro had taught the child well. The Japanese stopped leering and suddenly sprawled in an unconscious heap on top of Restwick Carnes.
"You wasn't doing so good, chum," observed Choppo.
While the red-haired man extricated himself from that loathsome hold, the little boy delved into Jiro's market basket. After Rusty's attack on it the contents were a jumbled mess. All the same, everything was there. Two cameras, instead of one, several rolls of film, even some pictures that could easily have been snapped the previous afternoon. Soldiers and sailors celebrating in the garden of a drinking place, grinning Japanese proprietors. Jiro must have hurried to develop them.
"Makin' fun!" fumed Choppo.
Rusty was propped on one elbow, fighting to get great gulps of fresh air into his starved lungs. The incensed youngster thrust the offensive snapshots beneath his friend's face. There was a story in them. The man knew. Proof that the Americans were weak and debauched. Pictured propaganda to add to the already supercharged conceit of the Japanese. Choppo did not exactly understand. Yet something in the pictures had spoken to him. "Makin' fun!" was undeniably descriptive. Restwick Carnes' head was beginning to feel as if it were a part of his body, instead of some separate whirling object. "Choppo," he said in a hoarse voice, "go grab the first policeman or soldier you see and bring him here."
"You sure you can manage that rat?"
Rusty stretched for the iron pipe. "Yeh!"
The child, decided Rusty, must have traveled at a speed that made a blur of his spindly legs, because in no time he was back with a soldier whose gun had a bayonet so sharply capable that Restwick Carnes slid the iron pipe behind him.
"Good work," praised the soldier as he grasped the significance of the contents of Jiro's baskets.
The red-haired man lifted a tired hand toward Choppo. "He did it."
Self-pride was beginning to wear on the little boy. He wriggled with embarrassment. Fortunately, at that moment, Jiro stirred and opened his eyes.
"Crawl back into the wood-work!" yelled Choppo. A grin passed over Jiro's face, a grin not decipherable to the child. "Look at the dizzy dope!" the boy told the two men. "Grinning like that. He must be 'mysterical'!"
Not evident to him was the fact that Jiro already had done his best work, that forthcoming punishment would be an honor. If they killed him he would be dying for his country. It would be next thing to taking a suicide dive. He grinned again when the soldier pointed his bayonet and ordered him to march ahead.

Back in the car neither Rusty nor Choppo spoke for a brief moment. Suddenly the little boy asked gruffly, "Well, what do we do now?"
"Maybe we'd better go back to the hotel."
"And leave all this trouble, all these fires and sick soldiers and Jiro guys hanging around? We gotta help—aw, Rusty, stop!" He turned away from the sight of tears sliding down the man's burnished cheeks.
Restwick Carnes was weeping from bodily fatigue and pain, from the devastation done his country. But too, he was weeping from a new poisonous knowledge that had crept into his unwilling mind. He was afraid. Beneath his bustling help, back of his splendid family name, he was afraid. Lily-livered! Paige had been right.
Luckily the boy did not dream of such trepidation in the heart of his idol. He did not dream that Rusty wanted to crawl away to some hiding place and pretend nothing had happened. Rusty's tears he compared to his own, that he was man-aging to hold back, that he MUST hold back, because of Rusty.
"Phooey! Everyone gets blubbery now and then." He slapped his bare knees. "Know what's in there? Butter. Sloppy melted butter."
Restwick Carnes grinned at the child. For his sake, he must get hold of himself. He must keep trying to help. He must do something important. "Choppo," he demanded, "will you wait for me right here?"
"What? Again? No!"
"For just a while?"
"You didn't win any prizes the last time I let you out alone. I'd better stick with you." His brow clenched. "What's buzzin', pal?"
"An idea—crazy, maybe, but I'm so darn mad at these Japs, it seems plausible."
"What does that mean?"
"Possible."
"T' catch. 'Could do.' Let's have it." The childish crinkles between Choppo's eyes deepened as he listened. "Couldn't do," he decreed abruptly. "You ain't even got a gun on your plane."
"There are plenty of loose machine guns at Hickam. If I got one of those and a soldier to shoot it and got my ship warmed up—we might get a few Japs."
"And they might get you—yeh, and supposin' our own guys down there didn't know you when you was flyin' around? The guys shootin' the big anti-guns. That'd put you behind the eight ball, chum."
The youngster's brilliant reasoning held Rusty speechless for a while. Too, he was shamefully glad he had been talked out of it, and a bit shocked to realize that the danger of it had been evident to Choppo, but not to him. I must be a nit-wit, that thought to himself.
Choppo's tired, hoarse voice directed. "Snap out of it, pal. Start this crate and let's get another victim. And if you're still in the notion of spilling any blood, spill it at the hospital, where they're taking it for wounded people."

As the day moved on, in long tortuous hours, people learned that Hickam lost hangars, barracks, other buildings. Men had been caught in ships in the harbor. Others had been shot in the water, still more in the airfields, as they raced to save what they could of the doomed planes. Ford island had been strafed again and again. Worse even, defenseless civilians had been strafed as they ran for safety. That cruelty seemed to be one of the delights of the yellow devils.
Restwick Carnes knew now how slim the chances of battling an enemy plane would have been. Only a few escaped damage long enough to be warmed up and sent into the sky. Those few thundered bravely into dogfights that astounded the Japs, thrilled the people of Hawaii and glorified the daring pilots. But they were so pitifully few. Practically all the planes on the ground, helpless and uncovered, were kindling, not fighting. They exploded, flamed, smoldered.
Blame bounced here and there. The population was heart sick and disillusioned, filled with questions, all bitter. After hours of ambulance duty, maddening because they could carry only one person, Rusty finally headed toward the Queen's hospital to donate blood. Weakness that was young, too old, white, foreign, even some Japanese were there, whether loyal or not or one knew. Even a spy would give blood to prove his 'loyalty.' But while he stood in line, Restwick Carnes tried not to see all this. He tried to close his eyes and ears against everything revolutionary to his life. He tried to think only of Hawaii as he knew it up to today.
Choppo was waiting in the automobile. Certain that he had missed one of the most important sequences of the day, he greeted Rusty coldly, rebellion showing in every muscle.
There was rebellion in Restwick Carnes also, rebellion toward the weakness that was gripping him. Surely a healthy person would give a little blood without wanting to keel over.
He was driving slowly. "Some day, huh, Choppo?"
"Yep. Little different from playing on Waikiki beach."
Rusty nodded. "And the trouble is just beginning." Occasional shellfire, that was miles away, sounded all too close. "Sleep in your clothes tonight, Choppo."
Restwick Carnes' voice was dull. "Ahh probably will be sleeping in hers tonight, too."
"Ahh? Why?" All of a sudden the little boy knew. He broke into wild sobs. Restwick Carnes wished he had not said anything, yet it was gratifying to see the little red-head's damp devotion for the woman who had given him everything.
He must tell Abby how much Choppo cared for her. But when? When would he see Abby again?

• Eastern Star Observes Birthday Anniversary

• Forty Present At Ceremony In Lodge Hall

Circleville chapter No. 90, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its forty-fifth birthday anniversary Tuesday at the regular session in Masonic Temple. Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Neuding and Mrs. George W. Fox, the only charter members of the organization present, were presented and invited to seats in the East. Mr. and Mrs. Neuding are the only surviving couple of the charter member group.

More than 40 members and visitors were present for the affair which was in charge of Mrs. Cecil Noecker, the new worthy matron. She presented a most unusual program, a birthday pantomime, portraying the 12 months of the year in tableaux. Officers of the chapter participated.

Miss Thelma Plum pleased the guests with her two solos, "Memories" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." Mrs. Joseph Peters sang "Sweethearts" as her contribution to the excellent entertainment.

The guests were invited to the dining room during the social hour where a lovely birthday cake topped with 45 lighted candles centered the attractive lace-covered table. Pink and white candles burned at each end of the table. Mrs. Fox cut the birthday cake and the officers of the chapter served.

During the opening business session, Mrs. Noecker named her standing committees: Mrs. Lawrence Johnson and Mrs. I. W. Kinsey, instruction; Mrs. Emmett Barnhart and Mrs. Frank Bowling, examining committee; Mrs. E. S. Shane, Mrs. Dwight Steele and Mrs. R. C. McAllister, decorating; Mrs. John Magill, flower committee; Mrs. William Cady, chairman of the committee for sale of brooms made by the blind, and Mrs. George Foerst, in charge of publicity.

• Benevolent Association

Circleville Benevolent association met Tuesday in the city cottage with Miss Florence Dunton, president, in the chair for the short business hour. Routine reports were received, bills ordered paid and the report of Miss Clara Southward, case worker, received.

Miss Southward announced donations of clothing during the month sufficient to supply some of the many clothing needs. A few garments were purchased. Sixty families were given 187 articles of clothing, which included 16 pairs of shoes, coats for men and women, sweaters, shirts, underwear and 72 miscellaneous articles: bedding, curtains, dishes and other household supplies.

Prepared food from the Methodist church, the Tuxis club, and the Express company helped to feed 21 families.

At Christmas time other donations, in addition to cash, helped to fill the Christmas baskets, the donations including canned goods, jellies, jams and toys, and were received from the Emerald Canning company, the Von Bora society, the Luther League, Westminster Bible class, Presbyterian Women's Social club, the Child Conservation league, Business and Professional Women's club, Girl Scout Troops No. 1 and No. 4.

Mrs. N. G. Spangler supplied bread and J. O. Eagleson, potatoes, for each of the baskets that were sent to 40 families. A ton of coal donated by Mrs. Edward F. Delaplaine was divided between two families. Each basket contained chicken or beef, one pound of oleomargarine, potatoes, canned vegetables, canned fruits, a loaf of bread, bottle of milk, apples, oranges, candy and also toys and games for the children.

Clarence Helvering, city service director, donated the use of two city trucks and the men to deliver the baskets the day before Christmas.

On the list for the month were the names of 79 families that were given assistance of one kind or another. Fifty-seven visits were in the homes of applicants; 17 visits in behalf of applicants; 101 office interviews with applicants and 70 interviews with consultants.

A vote of thanks for the assistance was extended to donors by the society.

• Christ Lutheran League

Luther league of Christ Lutheran church met Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Davis, Jackson township, with 25 members and guests present. The devotional service was in charge of Mrs. Harry Kern, the new president, and the topic, "What is an Intense Christian Life?" was read by Mrs. Paul Beougher. Discussion of the topic was led by the Rev. George L. Troutman.

The interesting program included a poem read by Mrs. Paul Beougher; reading, Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel; poem, Lyle Davis; recitation, Mary and Betty Krimmel; reading, Mrs. George Troutman and games and contests in which all participated.

The evening was concluded with delightful refreshments.

D. A. R. SELECTS DELEGATES TO NATIONAL MEET

Pickaway Plains chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Orion King, West High street, Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Mrs. Charles H. May being named delegates to the National Convention to be held April 17 in Cincinnati. Alternates to the National Convention chosen at the same time are Mrs. King, Mrs. Noah G. Spangler, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger and Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker.

Mrs. Hunsicker, Mrs. May, Mrs. Beryl Stevenson and Mrs. Moffitt were elected delegates to the State Convention that will convene March 17 at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus. Alternates to the convention include Miss Mary Heffner, Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. Russell McDill, Mrs. Harry McGhee and Mrs. Florence Cromley.

Mrs. Moffitt was in charge of the opening ritualistic work. Members are requested to report on the amount of Red Cross work they have completed and also the amount of war bonds and stamps purchased.

Letters of thanks were read from the boys in service who had received the "Buddy Bags" made and donated by chapter members. Mrs. Paul Johnson read a very interesting paper on "Angels of Mercy." She told first that for centuries there was no care for the wounded on the battle field and discussed the use of primitive methods of caring for them after this work was undertaken. She said that in the 10th century some hospitals were instituted and always designated by the cross, though of different colors. She told of many women noted for aiding the soldiers, and said that the requisites for treatment were "air, light, turpentine and whiskey", but if these failed, prayer and the Bible were resorted to. Early supplies sent to stricken areas were merely cast-offs.

She mentioned that there have been 2,400 disasters in our country, not one state escaping, and one having 122. A call comes to the Red Cross on the average of every three days. All money transactions of the organization are audited by the War department and copies of the report go to the President and Congress.

Extremely interesting demonstrations in Home Nursing were presented by Mrs. Christian Schwarz, who showed the correct procedure of the use of hot and cold applications. Mrs. Schwarz told how to use materials sure to be found in most homes and how to make simple applications.

Mrs. Donald H. Watt, First Aid instructor, told how to make and use bandages for various kinds of injuries.

Red, white and blue candles were used on the attractive tea table in the dining room where refreshments were served. Mrs. Noah Spangler and Mrs. Moffitt poured.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Spangler, Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Hervey J. Sweyer, Mrs. Helen

ASHVILLE

Most everyone we met yesterday had some kind of not complimentary remark about the weather—too cold and windy to fit into their liking. Another thought it not so very fine but that it could be a lot worse. So there it is, seldom contact anyone entirely pleased with their station however good that may be. But poor Old Weather Man is most always in bad—too hot, cold, wet or dry.

Ashville—Old Morpheus played no small part in the dim-out at 9:40 last night, having put abed many of the old youngsters with lights all out, long before 9:40 was reached. The signals, through the fire alarm siren at this named hour and operated by Deputy Marshal Cecil Scott, were long and loud and notified all in the village for "lights out" and the order was obeyed with very few if any violations. The black-out comes next in order.

Ashville—With his daughter Nellie, teacher in Walnut township schools, Ludwig Oesterle is now a citizen of Ashville, having moved here Monday evening from his temporary residence at the home of Herman and Mrs. Berger, Walnut township. They occupy what is known as the Miss Flora Peters dwelling in "Millionaire Row", East Main street, as Ludwig said. That friendly, mail carrying, collie dog is along as a part of the family and maybe, after awhile, when he gets used to city style he'll be doing the mail delivery act again.

Ashville—The school board which has to do with the local grade schools, was in session yesterday evening with all members present and including Supt. Higley and Clerk Earle Essick. No business transacted except bill paying.

Ashville—For those who wish to use his free services, it is announced that Robert J. Gregg of the Ohio Sales Tax Division, will be here at the Ashville Bank Thursday, the 14th, from 9 o'clock a. m. till 1 p. m. to assist vendors at their semi-annual sales tax reports covering the July to December period.

Ashville—Grade cards, carrying good news and bad news of children's progress in school work, went out to the parents Wednesday noon. The second semester opened January 11 and unless plans are altered, there will be no vacation for the rest of the year which will close around the 21st of May.

Ashville—Business Arithmetic, replacing Economic Geography, is the only new course being offered at Ashville High School and thus far twelve students have enrolled for the subject. They are Harold Tosca, Richard Kuhlwein, Glenn May, Robert Younkin, Harry Fry, Ralph Reese, Helen Irwin, Wilma Rhinesmith, Pauline Lewis, Mary Rinehart, Freda Metz and Ruth Wagner.

The required reports given at the close of the Geography course and the students giving them are as follows: Soy Beans by Harold Tosca, Airplanes by Harry Fry, The Coast Guard by Glenn May, Salmon Fishing by Helen Irwin, Pork Products by Robert Younkin, Guns by Eugene Bozman, Wheat by Reva Smith, New York City by Betty Nance, Cotton by Mary Rinehart, Nylon by Pauline Lewis, Submarines by Harry Rife, Motion Pictures by Richard Cummins, Lockbourne Air Base by Wilma Rhinesmith, Ships by Ralph Reese and Synthetic Rubber by Richard Kuhlwein.

Ashville—The big game of the year is scheduled for the Bronco gymnasium Friday night of this week when the undefeated Pickaway Pirates invade for what should be a "terrific battle". It will be also a home-coming for Bob Young who attended our school last year and played a lot of basketball, mostly on the reserve team. Bob will be the key man on the Pirate team, he was outscored and probably outplayed his teammates in every game played to date. Last week he scored over twenty-five points in helping his team defeat Saltcreek. Though our loss of Bob Young is Pickaway's gain, there's no moaning the fact and the Broncos are practicing hard for the coming game which will give them the chance to even a score of an earlier game in which the locals lost at Pickaway 33 to 22. The Broncos have improved much since that game and will be doing their best to produce a victory over their top-notch opponents and thereby become the first team to administer a defeat. Friday, the 15th is the date.

Fox, the only charter members of the organization present, were presented and invited to seats in the East. Mr. and Mrs. Neuding are the only surviving couple of the charter member group.

More than 40 members and visitors were present for the affair which was in charge of Mrs. Cecil Noecker, the new worthy matron. She presented a most unusual program, a birthday pantomime, portraying the 12 months of the year in tableaux. Officers of the chapter participated.

Miss Thelma Plum pleased the guests with her two solos, "Memories" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." Mrs. Joseph Peters sang "Sweethearts" as her contribution to the excellent entertainment.

The guests were invited to the dining room during the social hour where a lovely birthday cake topped with 45 lighted candles centered the attractive lace-covered table. Pink and white candles burned at each end of the table. Mrs. Fox cut the birthday cake and the officers of the chapter served.

During the opening business session, Mrs. Noecker named her standing committees: Mrs. Lawrence Johnson and Mrs. I. W. Kinsey, instruction; Mrs. Emmett Barnhart and Mrs. Frank Bowling, examining committee; Mrs. E. S. Shane, Mrs. Dwight Steele and Mrs. R. C. McAllister, decorating; Mrs. John Magill, flower committee; Mrs. William Cady, chairman of the committee for sale of brooms made by the blind, and Mrs. George Forster, in charge of publicity.

Delaplaine was divided between two families. Each basket contained chicken or beef, one pound of oleomargarine, potatoes, canned vegetables, canned fruits, a loaf of bread, bottle of milk, apples, oranges, candy and also toys and games for the children.

D. A. R. SELECTS DELEGATES TO NATIONAL MEET

Pickaway Plains chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Orion King, West High street, Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Mrs. Charles H. May being named delegates to the National Convention to be held April 17 in Cincinnati. Alternates to the National Convention chosen at the same time are Mrs. King, Mrs. Noah G. Spangler, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger and Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker. Mrs. Hunsicker, Mrs. May, Mrs. Beryl Stevenson and Mrs. Moffitt were elected delegates to the State Convention that will convene March 17 at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus. Alternates to the convention include Miss Mary Heffner, Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. Russell McDill, Mrs. Harry McGhee and Mrs. Florence Cromley.

Mrs. Moffitt was in charge of the opening ritualistic work. Members are requested to report on the amount of Red Cross work they have completed and also the amount of war bonds and stamps purchased.

Letters of thanks were read from the boys in service who had received the "Buddy Bags" made and donated by chapter members.

Mrs. Paul Johnson read a very interesting paper on "Angels of Mercy." She told first that for centuries there was no care for the wounded on the battle field and discussed the use of primitive methods of caring for them after this work was undertaken. She said that in the 10th century some hospitals were instituted and always designated by the cross, though of different colors. She told of many women noted for aiding the soldiers, and said that the requisites for treatment were "air, light, turpentine and whiskey", but if these failed, prayer and the Bible were resorted to. Early supplies sent to stricken areas were merely cast-offs.

She mentioned that there have been 2,400 disasters in our country, not one state escaping, and one having 122. A call comes to the Red Cross on the average of every three days. All money transactions of the organization are audited by the War department and copies of the report go to the President and Congress.

Extremely interesting demonstrations in Home Nursing were presented by Mrs. Christian Schwarz, who showed the correct procedure of the use of hot and cold applications. Mrs. Schwarz told how to use materials sure to be found in most homes and how to make simple applications.

Mrs. Donald H. Watt, First Aid instructor, told how to make and use bandages for various kinds of injuries.

Red, white and blue candles were used on the attractive tea table in the dining room where refreshments were served. Mrs. Noah Spangler and Mrs. Moffitt poured.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Spangler, Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Hervey J. Sweyer, Mrs. Helen

First War-Time Pickaway County Dim-Out Test Proves Success

ENTIRE AREA IN DARKNESS FOR 20 MINUTES

Excellent Cooperation Of All Citizens Reported By Mayors

FEW CITY VIOLATIONS

Hundreds Of Emergency Workers Participate In Program

Initial dim-out test for Pickaway county's villages and the second alert for Circleville residents Tuesday at 9:40 p. m. proved to be outstanding successes, rural participation drawing praise from observers, and Circleville's test being almost perfect. Not more than two or three violations were recorded in Circleville, about half of the number reported in the test several weeks ago.

The dim-out was arranged to test facilities in the rural villages especially and to give Circleville residents a chance to make their test even better than the first with which Civilian Defense Council executives were greatly pleased.

Full Cooperation
From preliminary reports received at the control center in the courthouse the village dim-outs were carried out in excellent style, nearly all populated centers of the county reporting excellent cooperation.

Official report of the villages will be made during the day by mayors and others who are in charge of preparedness work in the rural area when they file their reports in writing with T. E. Wilson, executive director of the county Defense Council. However, during the night practically all village officials expressed their satisfaction with the manner in which their residents cooperated.

At the stroke of 9:40 Circleville factory whistles and the fire bell sounded the alert and immediately several hundred members of the CD organization went into action. Forewarned, all were ready to leave for their respective posts. Air raid wardens, fire watchers, messengers, drivers' corps, sheriff's auxiliary police, Circleville auxiliary police, auxiliary firemen, emergency medical corps, and the control center organization all went into action, and in a few minutes every part of the district was properly patrolled. Members of the sheriff's unit took up vigil at several strategic bridges in the district.

City Goes Black
In less than two minutes all of Circleville, except street lights and traffic lights, was dark. A night light was left burning in one West Main street business place, and one or two other persons left lights burning when they left their homes for the evening.

The all-clear sounded at 10 o'clock.
Many Pickaway county farmers, especially those close enough to Circleville to hear the alarm system operate, turned off their lights in cooperation with the dim-out effort.

Farmers are not required to turn out their lights, Defense Council officials pointed out, unless those lights brilliantly illuminate the outside buildings. However, many did a good job in turning out all lights to show their cooperation.

Next test for the district is expected to be a blackout, with all street and traffic lights off and all traffic stopped. During the first two dim-outs traffic was permitted to continue although drivers were asked to move slowly.

Whether Civilian Defense Council will announce the date for the blackout or whether the test will be a surprise is not yet known.

Reports to be filed by mayors of the various villages with the Defense Council are expected to show how many persons participated in the village CD organization, how many lights remained burning, and other information of interest to the Council.

SUIT DISMISSED
Dismissal of the partition suit brought in common pleas court by Shirley Lathouse against Homer Lathouse and others was announced Wednesday by Judge Meeker Terwilliger.

Victory Tax Hoped to Have Little Damaging Effect on Bond Sales

New Victory Tax which will result in a five percent deduction from every salary of over $12 a week should not result in a reduction in the sale of War Bonds and Stamps in Circleville and Pickaway county.

Earl A. Smith, chairman of the county War Savings committee, said Wednesday that the new tax "has a silver lining of which few are yet aware. We do not expect any falling off in either over-the-counter sales or in plants where payroll deduction plans are in operation."

Part of the tax, Mr. Smith said, ranging from one-fourth for single persons to one-half for a married man with five children, is refundable and can be regarded as savings.

To show that the new tax is not so bad when the figures are produced, Mr. Smith cited the following hypothetical case:

"Mr. AB is married, with no children, draws $40 a week or $2,080 per year. He has no other income, and his wife is not gainfully employed. Before any Victory Tax attaches, he is allowed the exemption of $12 per week or $624 a year.

"Deducting the $624 exemption, he would pay the 5 percent Victory Tax on $1,456 for the year. This would amount to $72.80, of which 40 percent or $29.12 would be refundable, leaving a net Victory Tax of $43.68. That would be only 84 cents a week, or a little more than 2 percent of his gross income.

"To qualify to claim the $29.12 refund in advance (to use in payment of 1943 income taxes) Mr. AB would need only to lay out that amount in life insurance premiums, debt reductions, or War Bond purchases.

A simplified table of Victory Taxes, the amounts refundable, and the actual net cost of the tax for different income groups:

Weekly	40% Net cost	Refund of	%
Earn-Reduce	able Tax	Cost
$25 .65	.26	.39	1.56
$30 .90	.36	.54	1.8
$40 1.40	.56	.84	2.1
$50 1.90	.76	1.14	2.28
$60 2.40	.96	1.44	2.4

(Deductions shown here are based on a minimum refund allowed to a married man. Dependents would increase the refund by 2 percent for each dependent.)

"Regardless of whose scratch pad you figure it on, certainly an expenditure of even $1.44 a week to help win the war should not stop a person from keeping up his investments in War Bonds," Mr. Smith said.

SOYBEANS STOLEN
J. W. Miller of near Darbyville reported Wednesday to the sheriff's office that 40 bushels of Dunfield soybeans have been stolen from his farm recently.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

ators Wheeler of Montana and Nye of North Dakota are working so feverishly for an investigation of the Justice Department and its prosecution of Hitler stooges in the USA.

That reason is that they know some of the dynamite-laden evidence now before the Justice Department which is sure to come out when these cases go to trial. That evidence shows the two Senators as having been used by the Nazi sympathizers and alleged seditionists.

Probably the two Senators did not know they were being used. Wheeler, at the time, told friends he was worried over definite Nazi influences inside the America First Committee and that he had worked inside it to keep those influences down.

However, the fact remains that Frank K. Frenz, one of those indicted for sedition, organized the America First rally for Wheeler when he arrived in Los Angeles, and was one of Wheeler's active supporters. Frenz, according to evidence before the Justice Department, had a sister in Germany who wrote him advice regarding a job for der Fuehrer.

Senator Nye, in turn, has lent his frank to the Steuben Society, for which the Steuben Society was fined by the Post Office Department. He has also been active behind-the-scenes in aiding the appeal of George Sylvester Viereck, already convicted for failure to register as a foreign agent and now indicted for sedition.

Furthermore, recent evidence before the Justice Department from an American long resident in Berlin quotes high-ranking Nazis as saying that if war came, they had the U. S. A. organized and that Wheeler was their favorite Senator. While nobody who knows Senator Wheeler believes for a minute that he was a party to this, many do feel that he was unwittingly used by Nazi propagandists.

At any rate all of these facts and more are expected to come out when the sedition-propaganda cases go to trial. Obviously, therefore, it is good strategy on the part of the two senators involved to attack the Justice Department in advance. Then when the evidence is brought out, they can charge persecution and a smear campaign.

JOE MARTIN VS SAM RAYBURN

Privately Republican leader Joe Martin never had any intention of letting the Republicans organize Congress and elect him as Speaker. Until 1944, this responsibility is the last thing he wants.

However, the canny Republican leader took keen delight in keeping the opposition guessing and carried on his little joke until the very last.

When he marched into Speaker Rayburn's office with the committee that was to escort Rayburn to the floor, following his reelection, Martin was grinning from ear to ear.

"Sam," he said, "I've got some bad news for you. I hope you can hold up under the shock. You've been reelected Speaker."

Earl A. Smith, chairman of the county War Savings committee, said Wednesday that the new tax "has a silver lining of which few are yet aware. We do not expect any falling off in either over-the-counter, sales or in plants where payroll deduction plans are in operation."

Part of the tax, Mr. Smith said, ranging from one-fourth for single persons to one-half for a married man with five children, is refundable and can be regarded as savings.

To show that the new tax is not so bad when the figures are produced, Mr. Smith cited the following hypothetical case:

"Mr. AB is married, with no children, draws $40 a week or $2,080 per year. He has no other income, and his wife is not gainfully employed. Before any Victory Tax attaches, he is allowed the exemption of $12 per week or $624 a year.

"Deducting the $624 exemption, he would pay the 5 percent Victory Tax on $1,456 for the year. This would amount to $72.80, of which 40 percent or $29.12 would be refundable, leaving a net Victory Tax of $43.68. That would be only 84 cents a week, or a little more than 2 percent of his gross income.

"To qualify to claim the $29.12 refund in advance (to use in payment of 1943 income taxes) Mr. AB would need only to lay out that amount in life insurance premiums, debt reductions, or War Bond purchases.

A simplified table of Victory Taxes, the amounts refundable, and the actual net cost of the tax for different income groups:

Weekly	40% Net cost	Earn-Reduce-Refund-of	%
$25	.65	26	30
$30	.90	36	54
$40	1.40	56	84
$50	1.90	76	114
$60	2.40	96	144

(Deductions shown here are based on a minimum refund allowed to a married man. Dependents would increase the refund by 2 percent for each dependent.)

"Regardless of whose scratch pad you figure it on, certainly an expenditure of even $144 a week to help win the war should not stop a person from keeping up his investments in War Bonds," Mr. Smith said.

SOYBEANS STOLEN

J. W. Miller of near Darbyville reported Wednesday to the sheriff's office that 40 bushels of Dunfield soybeans have been stolen from his farm recently.

When you're "On the Spot"—we're on the spot!

When trouble comes it is mighty comforting to have a helpful friend by your side.

This is the role of your insurance agent — a friend, on the spot, who knows just what to do when you have a loss.

That alone is sufficient reason to insure through your local agent — but as well, when you buy insurance you need expert advice to make sure that you have the proper kind and amounts.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

ators Wheeler of Montana and Nye of North Dakota are working so feverishly for an investigation of the Justice Department and its prosecution of Hitler stooges in the USA.

That reason is that they know some of the dynamite-laden evidence now before the Justice Department which is sure to come out when these cases go to trial. That evidence shows the two Senators as having been used by the Nazi sympathizers and alleged seditionists.

Probably the two Senators did not know they were being used. Wheeler, at the time, told friends he was worried over definite Nazi influences inside the America First Committee and that he had worked inside it to keep those influences down.

However, the fact remains that Frank K. Ferenz, one of those indicted for sedition, organized the America First rally for Wheeler when he arrived in Los Angeles, and was one of Wheeler's active supporters. Ferenz, according to evidence before the Justice Department, had a sister in Germany who wrote him advice regarding a job for der Fuehrer.

Senator Nye, in turn, has lent his frank to the Steuben Society, for which the Steuben Society was fined by the Post Office Department. He has also been active behind-the-scenes in aiding the appeal of George Sylvester Viereck, already convicted for failure to register as a foreign agent and now indicted for sedition.

Furthermore, recent evidence before the Justice Department from an American long resident in Berlin quotes high-ranking Nazis as saying that if war came, they had the U. S. A. organized and that Wheeler was their favorite Senator. While nobody who knows Senator Wheeler believes for a minute that he was a party to this, many do feel that he was unwittingly used by Nazi propagandists.

At any rate all of these facts and more are expected to come out when the sedition-propaganda cases go to trial. Obviously, therefore, it is good strategy on the part of the two senators involved to attack the Justice Department in advance. Then when the evidence is brought out, they can charge persecution and a smear campaign.

FAITH IN VICTORY

"I'm sorry, but you can't go up there," he announced. "We're members of Congress," spoke up several freshmen.

"I don't care who you are," replied the soldier, fixing his bayonet. "You can't go up these steps. Those are my orders." And that was that until someone located a lieutenant, who rescinded the order and permitted the group picture to be made on the steps.

JOE MARTIN VS SAM RAYBURN

Privately Republican leader Joe Martin never had any intention of letting the Republicans organize Congress and elect him as Speaker. Until 1944, this responsibility is the last thing he wants.

However, the canny Republican leader took keen delight in keeping the opposition guessing and carried on his little joke until the very last.

When he marched into Speaker Rayburn's office with the committee that was to escort Rayburn to the Floor, following his reelection, Martin was grinning from ear to ear.

"Sam," he said, "I've got some bad news for you. I hope you can hold up under the shock. You've been reelected Speaker."
